

To All,

I'm enthusiastic about the service and candidates we've received while working with Bob Bishop and his company, Bishop Partners.

As a result of a simple conversation over lunch and Bob's understanding of the agency business and client service, he made some great suggestions about how to improve our value to clients. He not only made these suggestions, but also offered solutions.

In a relatively short period of time, he introduced candidates that not only matched the skill set we needed, but more importantly were passionate professionals ready to contribute dramatically to our organization. He went beyond that simple resume/job description matching. He understands the intangibles . . . those personality and attitude characteristics that separate exceptional performers from the good ones.

I would recommend having a conversation with Bob about your staffing issues and see how he can help. He's a veteran with the experience and intuition to be able to support and contribute to the stability and growth of your company.

Sincerely,
