

Whether you're a job seeker or an agency with a need for hard-to-find talent, Bob Bishop is the person to know in the St. Louis advertising world. He is trusted by many agency owners and HR personnel due to his proven track record of recognizing talent and identifying good long-term matches. And with connections to the best agencies in town, he has the ability to get talented individuals recognized who might otherwise be disregarded.

During the summer of 2007, Bob Bishop connected me to a talented team of advertising professionals in the St. Louis area. Throughout the whole experience, he was extremely professional, helpful and reliable. He offered invaluable advice on proper interviewing etiquette and how to negotiating offers. It was a pleasure working with Bob Bishop, and I look forward to working with him again in the future.